(For the Roundabout.)
OLD TIMES IN FRANKFORT.
No. VIII.

The tenderest memories connected with the long ago, are those when bring vividly back the faces of those who have crossed the dark river to the spirit land, and above whose bodies the green sod is resting lightly. The scenes in which they were prominent actors seem a long way back—so far away, in fact, that they partake more of the imagery of a dream, or the fanciful conjuration of the brain, than the actual events of a time when they were visibly present.

Then there are memories connected with the living—those whose hair once richly black or brown, have now become sprinkled with gray threads—whose eyes, once keen as the eagles, have now become dimmed—and whose limbs, once active and lithe, have now become unsteady and bent. Then there are thoughts of others whose heyday of youth seems loth to depart—whose green manhood has simply matured and ripened, and who are yet equal to the responsibilities and burdens of business. All these varied representations of a generation past—a time so short in history and yet so long in the panorama of change—form the constituent figures that fill the picture of old times in Frankfort.

Not only have the people changed—some died and others grown old—but places have changed—houses have been torn down and replaced by others—fences and trees have been removed and old landmarks effaced. The citizen of 1795 or 1820 who might return to this city from the land of the unseen and walk once more about the streets would find little to remind him of the time when he was in the enjoyment of life. All around would seem to be the creations of dream life—unreal and startling—and his mind would be dazed and confused. Like Rip Van Winkle, he would be perplexed with the transformations and almost ready to "wrap the drapery of his couch about him" and once more "lie down to pleasant dreams" in the land of eternal rest.

Even the citizen of 1870—only a generation ago—would find many changes. Very few men of middle age at that period are yet alive—they can be counted on the fingers—while hundreds have answered the last call and are resting up yonder on the hill.

It would take pages of almost endless narration to recall all the incidents—the faces and figures—attaching to those who peopled our streets and transacted the business of a generation ago. Col. Runkle, the veteran of the war of 1812, with his alert figure and keen eye, was the county clerk, and Walter Franklin was circuit clerk. James Morris was sheriff and George C. Draue presided on the circuit bench. Judge R. A. Thomson presided over the board of magistrates and dispensed the functions of county judge. He was fond of tokens of the past, and after his death his collection of Indian relics, fossils and curios were sold to Bennett H. Young, of Louisville, whose cabinet of archeological specimens is probably the largest in the State.

Ed. P. Bryan was agent of the L. & N., at the depot, from which he first received a promotion to take charge of the St. Louis system of railway terminals, at a salary of $20,000 per annum, and then to New York City to supervise its local system, at a salary of $50,000 annually. He aided materially in the construction of the new subway. Bryan was, in his younger days, telegraph operator at Briartown, a small station on the Knoxville branch of the L. & N., four miles south of Danville. Whilst stationed there, he was accidentally shot and seriously wounded in the side during a difficulty between two other men, occurring in his office. He was a great friend of Col. Hiram Berry, and to his solicitation the latter was often wont to yield and render for friends that favorite melody of "The Old Turnpike Gate."

David Meriwether dispensed the hospitalities of the Meriwether Hotel, now the Elk, and provided a table notable for the excellence of its supplies and cuisine. He was fond of a joke and addicted to the seductions of a quiet humor. At one time a newly married couple of young people had stopped with him for the night. As Uncle Davey told it, "it was his habit, before retiring late at night, to make the circuit of the hall to see that all was right." This particular night, in going the rounds, he detected the strong smell of escaping gas. Tracing it down, it seemed to come from the room in which the newly married couple were sleeping. He knocked loudly on the door, finally aroused the half stupefied bridegroom, asked him if he had not blown out the gas, and receiving an affirmative reply, requested him to open the door quick and let him turn off the gas, or he would be dead before morning. After averting the danger he asked the frightened man: "Didn't you know something was wrong, didn't you smell the gas?" "Yes," responded the bridegroom hesitatingly, "but I never was married before, and I thought—thought it was Sue, and"—"but Uncle Davey put his hand over his mouth and rushed out of the room and down stairs to tell his wife, and next morning related the story to the circle of lady boarders."

Among the noted social organizations of 1875, of unending persuasion, designed to promote good will, good fellowship and a good time were the "H. O. R.'s." Its unique banquet and literary olio, at Odd Fellows' Hall, was long the talk of the city. At this rare entertainment, after a rich menu, characteristic appearances were made by Clay Hatchett, Howe Watson and Dlek Chiles, as Orators; Geo. P. Berry, as Tombardier; Geo. L. Payne, as Clementine; Cal Lewis, as Nanceless; Swigert Taylor, at Poet Laureate; Johnson Todd, as Sweet Singer, and Bob Tifford, Will Parker and Guy Barrett, as inimitable in dialogue. Anderson Rice, colored (not an H. O. R.), rendered airs from the chief operas on his hand organ. Among other members of the H. O. R.'s were Jim Arnold, Tom Crittendon, Jamison Price, Stanton Taylor and James Meek. The dilapidated "H. O. R.'s" are recorded in history, among which is the following:

A young man named Johnson came to Frankfort. He prided in his strength, in his valor, in the glory of his achievements (told by himself.) The girls listened with wonder—the boys with amusement and incredulity. The matter was growing bolder, so Johnson was investigated into a soon hand. A night was set. A big Newfoundland dog and a rat terrier were engaged to trace the guine. The party secretly divided—some going ahead, unknown to Johnson, with guns and blank cartridges. The others accompanied Johnson. A long hunt through the woods south of town failed to start a coon. Being the month of May, few coons were abroad.

Then it was proposed to try a farmer's hen house for his fat chickens. About and in this house the advance party were concealed and waiting. As Johnson and his party approached, some one cried "Halt!" a shot was fired, then a fusillade—bang, bang, bang from every corner. Those around Johnson fell, crying, "I'm shot!" "I'm killed!" "Run for your life!" Johnson's promises and fighting courage gave way. He went into the bushes and briars, into the thorns and brambles, into the darkness and ditches, over the fences and fields he fled. About daylight, scratched and bleeding, his new coat in tatters, he arrived in near Hardsville, and later came to town in a wood wagon. To listening groups he recited his story of death and disaster. To corroborate, Berry showed a castrized wood in the leg; Arnold displayed a bullet hole in his hat; Crittendon carried his arm in a sling; Dr. Price diagnosed another as "too badly wounded to be seen." When the truth came out, Johnson left the city. S. R. S.

NATURE'S WARNING.

Frankfort People Must Recognize and Heed It.

Kidney ills come quietly—mysteriously. But nature always warns you through the urine. Notice the kidney secretions. See if the color is unhealthy—If there are settlements and sediment.

Passages too frequent, scanty, painful.

It's time then to use Doan's Kidney Pills.

To ward off Bright's disease or diabetes.

Doan's have done great work in Frankfort.

W. H. Roberts, grocer, of 330 Todd St., says: "Being in the drug business a good many years and a graduate pharmacist, my knowledge of medicine was sufficient to prove that my kidneys were not performing the work which nature intended they should, for I suffered a great deal from a persistent aching pain across the small of my back, and the secretions from the kidneys were highly colored, and so irregular, especially at night, that my rest was greatly disturbed. It was not until some two or three years ago that I learned about Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box. I gained at once from the use of these Pills that I pronounced them a kidney remedy of unequalled merit. My last supply was procured at J. W. Gayle's drug store, and I take a dose of them once in a while as a tonic for the kidneys. A number of friends of mine to whom I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills have used them with great benefit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 25 cents. Foster-McBurrin Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

FROM OUR SAILOR BOY.

Colonia, West Indies.

Editor Roundabout:

As I have nothing to do and have all day to do it in, I thought I would drop you a few lines to let you know I am well and still having a fine time. Hope when this letter "reaches the boat" it will find all of you the same. We are about 2,500 miles from New York, and will be more than that before we get back to the States. We are going to Quantanamo for target practice. May then go to Venezuela and quiet things down. It is about 90 here in the sun, but is cool at night. This is the rainy season now. It rains for ten or fifteen minutes and then stops about a half hour. If we are lying around the deck asleep and it starts to rain we lay there till the sun comes out and dries our clothes; that is (if we have any on), as most of the crew are in swimming all day. To-day is Sunday (30th) and about two-thirds of the crew are clubbing around the mountains or playing ball, or in swimming.

There are about 150 Indian ponies here. We hire them at 50 cents each for the afternoon. We had a race yesterday and there were three on mine. As we were running down the mountain his foot slipped and down he went. The three of us "looped the loop" all right. The pony rolled in the bay, but none of us were hurt, as we fell in sand about six inches thick. The pony rolled over a sand rock and knocked the bark off his knees. I have played quirs with the ponies. No more for mine.

This bay is full of man-eating sharks, and when we go in swimming we have someone standing watch, and if they see one they tell us and we elude him away with stones, but they hardly ever bother us in swimming. I saw one yesterday, about nine feet long. He turned over on his back for a small piece of bread. I believe he could swallow a wash tub.

We were at sea for ten days on the way here, and did not see any thing but one small schooner. It was a very tiresome trip. I was glad when we dropped anchor.

I got the Roundabout and Call and was very glad to get them. As usual, I read everything in them, as and all.

That big dry dock we went out to hunt we found her all right by wireless telegraph, and she is all O. K.

As it is about time for me to take my afternoon nap, I had better bring this bunch of fence rails to a close for this time.

Hoping to hear from all of you soon, I will close.

Yours truly,

LOL SHEETINGER.

P. S. S. West Va.

P. S.—Tell Criss I am going some and am able to loop the loop in three chapters.

Both of these questions will be discussed by authorities in an impartial, careful, interesting way.

FOURTH—ITS CHARACTER. McClure's Magazine is not edited for children, but at the same time there is never a line in it that any young girl might not read. Its advertising pages are as clean as its editorial pages.

W. S. FARMER

(Written for the Roundabout.)
PROFANITY AND CIGARETTES.

It would almost shock the sensibilities of a "Ward street Politician" to listen to the anathemas and execrations flowing from the lips of the youth and men of this city and its suburbs. Go where one may, down the respective lengths of Broadway, across either division of bridges, on the high streets, where are congregated daily and at night the element of a growing tendency toward egotistic rowdiness—mixed with a ruder individualism—and one's ears will be assailed by a trade of abusive profanity against municipalities, government, and the higher religious influences at work even in the atmosphere of crime, socialism, and every phase of moral suasion. Together with tobacco smoke from that vile little demon known as a cigarette, whose odoriferous fumes are pulled into the nostrils of a passerby. Even in the halls of Legislative Assemblies—one is compelled to "give a boost with a knock," to the live issues of the present consensus of public opinion, and write as well as talk against these two glaring habits of constitutional amendments to which men, as a general rule, and women frequently, are addicted. According to a definition—profanity is impropriety—irreverence of sacred things—and the language, or vehicle of conveyance is the directed assault, formulated and promulgated, by a thoughtless inconsistency, begun, as it were, in a serio-comic attitude for the sake of argumentative disparagement. The habit of swearing is superinduced by taking upon one's tongue, lightly, those sacred and holy things which should be spoken of only with hushed breath and reverential manner. A careless and indifferent conception of God, religion and morals.

Used by any person, young or old, the language of profanity is vulgar in the extreme. It is shown in lowered ideals, as frequently as in shattered and broken lives, upon which desolation one looks with a grieved spirit, and with tears. Cursing is an overflow of evil propensities negative to good conduct, a cyclone of influence as destructive to the individual as the storm is to the community at large. One can not take a serpent into one's bosom and not receive a wound of deepest agony; and words are things. Even the simplest insignia of gossip is filled with the poison of asps.

The boy or the girl should be tought, as a well-known teacher of this city instructs her pupils—"That it is as great a crime to tell an untruth about the lesson, or to steal an example from the board, as it is to put one's hand in a pocket to pilage therefrom."

And that the spirit of this age, if directed toward antagonism to every good advancement, if used as a weapon of open warfare, becomes in the month the vilest of the vile—"for out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh," "and it is even known by the manner of a child what kind of a spirit abideth with him." Our definition of a cigarette is: White paper imbued in opium, and imbued in wickedness, filled with a concoction of perfumed condiments susceptible of an amalgamation with the white or grey brain matter, and the heart's action, permeated with a very faint conception of scrambled tobacco juice, and the essence of objectionable odors, filling one's nostrils with stupefaction, and one's eyes with smoke, one's breath with disagreeable bitterness, one's fingers with tinges of disease, one's brain with insanity, one's heart action, with the inroads of death.

And nothing appears so infinitely small to an onlooker as a great, "big handsome man," with a contemptible cigarette in his mouth. If the habit of smoking must be acquired, and after it has become a fixed possibility, let the poor unfortunate (?) buy the real product—long leaf, or twist—put the same in an old-fashioned cob pipe and smoke it behind the chimney where the fumes will not destroy the lace curtains of the parlor or the happiness of those who so seriously object to smoke. If the great or small ego, must swear to promote his interests in politics, or social aggressiveness, let him go up on the "Fort Hill" and air his complaints to the four winds of the earth, after which women, right-minded men, and children, may walk the streets of Frankfort, or any other suburb, without hearing on every hand the terrible oath, or worse, a vile epithet, applied to officials, and to God. The houses of reform are crowded with youthful criminals devoid of reason by the use of cigarettes, while the prison doors are closed upon those whose imprecations to heaven brought down vengeance upon earth. And shall any one be annoyed by the habits of the street corners whose delight is in the make play of language unfit for innocent hearers, and the children of the city be ruined by the use of the intoxicating luxury wrapped in deadly white shrouding, whose ultimate ending must be either the alms house or the cemetery.

There is nothing more alarming than the growing tendency—among women—to smoke tea leaves in cigarettes. The influence generated, produces an artificial energy so much needed in a round of dissipated existence. They must have some kind of stimulant, and if not tea leaves, the resort is made to cigarettes, or other intoxicants. Shame be it said of one young lady who imbibed champagne to such a degree over "bridge whist" that a carriage had to be called to take her home. (This incident was not of Frankfort, however.)

Let the bill pass by an overwhelming majority to banish from our midst the dirty little villain of a cigarette in a white wrapper, and then pass laws and enforce them to stop profanity on our streets. So mote it be.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Mr. Andrew Noland, night watchman for Mr. Pratt, a contractor on the new capitol work, was found, early Wednesday morning, burned to death and lying in the middle of the Lawrenceburg pike, at the rock quarry of the company.

It is supposed that Noland went into the tent used by the company as a shelter for its day men to warm, where there was a big fire back under the lodge of rock, and by some means, his clothing caught fire, and, it is supposed, he ran out into the open air and thus perished.

Noland lived on North Wilkinson street, and is survived by a wife and five small children, who will be in straightened circumstances.

Coroner Graham was summoned, took charge of the remains and held an inquest, the facts as above given, being brought out.

A PETITION.

To the Mayor and Councilmen of Frankfort:
The eyes of all our people are upon you, gentlemen, whom they have elected to execute the laws and thus govern our city.
When those laws are not being enforced, it is the citizen's right to petition you for redress, you, it is their duty to do so.
We are all members of the same political household, but we must remember that patriotism is one thing and partisanship is quite another; though no man can be a reputable partisan who is not a patriot who does not love his country, and no man loves his country who disobeys its laws, or suffers it to be done by others, when it is his sworn duty to prevent it.
Though we all wear men's clothes, and profess to be men, and are called men; we are not in fact many men, unless we act the part and courageously meet the duties imposed upon men.
If we act or believe otherwise we are only humbugging ourselves—the very meanest thing a man can do to himself—for surely the people are never fooled by officials who disobey the laws themselves and allow others to do likewise.
Just as it is hard to tell which is the vilest, the man who abuses his family or the one who suffers others to do it, so we hesitate to say which is the smallest—the official who disobeys the laws he swears to uphold, or the one who suffers others to disobey them.
Your honorable body composes Frankfort's highest type of citizenship, which should be a guarantee for a faithful and courageous performance of duty. The fact that our laws have been and are now being recklessly disobeyed by certain classes of citizens furnishes no reason why you should be condemned, for many of you may have no knowledge of it, but if after you have a knowledge of it you continue silent and refuse to require all under you to perform their full duties, then you subject yourselves to the judgment of public opinion—to the condemnation of an outraged people.
Therefore, the purpose of the undersigned—a common citizen—one who loves our country and State and city—is to now acquaint you with instances of harmful violations of law, that you may have full knowledge of it, if you have not heretofore had, to the end that no excuse shall be henceforth made that no citizen has informed you, or that you have no knowledge of such.

Since the beginning of the present crusade by Mr. Davis against all law-breakers; and since the sending of my petition to the Mayor and Police Judge on the 19th instant; and since the vigorous action by other citizens and one of the churches, the saloon keepers in convention and agreed to heretofore close on Sundays; thus confessing to the charge laid against them that they were violating the Sunday laws; and, furthermore, furnishing additional proof that some of the city officials—Mr. Davis excepted—have been guilty of neglect of duty or failure to require obedience to our laws in that regard.
In that case the law was being violated one day in the week. In the matter of gambling, the law is being violated every day in the week. I am reliably informed, which I believe to be true, that many of the saloons are conducting or are giving shelter to gambling resorts where, cards, craps, etc., are continually played—where men are being swindled and where their families are being rendered penniless—where young men and boys are taught the hellish art of robbery—of getting something for nothing—and of living by the sweat of some other man's brow.
I report this to you and beg of you to forthwith purge our city of this cursed destroyer. I request you to cause the immediate arrest of all persons conducting gambling places, and of all those who own the property where such gambling resorts are operated, and bring them to trial under section 1900, Kentucky Statutes—which imposes a fine of $500 and confinement in the penitentiary from one to three years. And if any of your peace officers fail or refuse to so act, I urge you to bring them to trial under sections 1903 and 1904—which impose a fine in any sum not less than $1,000, and to be confined in the county jail not less than six months nor more than twelve months, and to forfeit any office they may hold.
I respectfully pledge my services as a citizen, if needed, and in advance promise to any official who fearlessly does his duty, my assistance and respect and admiration.
While I should rejoice if the gamblers should "meet and resolve to close and obey the law," yet in the absence of such action I stand openly for the rigid enforcement of the law against them.
Were the saloon keepers as honestly disposed as published reports make them, in now being so solicitous of having the Sunday laws obeyed, they would not fail to first obey all laws themselves—by closing the gambling rooms over their saloons—those that are now conducting such places, or suffering others to do it on their premises.
I respectfully implore you right to prevail, and upon the might of the good people to predominate; and shall be loath to believe your honorable body will recognize any other principle.
Respectfully submitted,
NOEL GAINES.
Frankfort, Monday, Jan. 29, 1906.

A PROGRESSIVE JOURNAL.

The Kentucky Farmer and Breeder, a progressive agricultural and live stock journal published at Lexington, has given another evidence of its enterprise. It appears this week in a complete new dress. It is printed on heavy super-calendered book paper of the finest grade, with the best news ink and has an entire new series of attractive Roycroft head-letter type. It is the handsomest publication of the kind ever issued in the South.
These changes are permanent and of themselves bespeak the splendid patronage which this excellent journal is enjoying. Established only two years ago, it has attained high rank within a very short space of time. From the beginning it has proved of the greatest service to the State's vast live stock and agricultural interests. Each issue is replete with news, suggestions, information and instruction. The paper was a big factor toward the success of the State Fair last summer. It is constantly advocating measures for the advancement of the interests it represents. It has taken hold of the saddle horse and gelding purpose horse field, and is giving this class of stock the attention which it deserves and which no other paper gave it.

We are glad to offer The Kentucky Farmer and Breeder on a clubbing proposition with the Roundabout at $2.75 per annum, and we would recommend that every one of our subscribers take it. Its regular rate is two dollars per year.

ALL AT WORK.
The Kentucky River Distillery, No. 2, and the John Cochrane & Co. Distillery, No. 37, made the first mashies of the season late last week.
All the distilleries, with the exception of the J. & J. M. Saffell Distillery are now in operation for the season's run.

THE ELEVENTH HOUR.

Lincoln J. Carter's popular and successful melodrama, "The Eleventh Hour," will be the offering at Capital Theatre to-night. It is needless to remark that the all-maxes and story will be sufficiently startling and thrilling to satisfy the most craving desire for pictorial realism supremely.
Norman Hackett, an elderly farmer, has fallen heir to a large inheritance and returns to his home with a package said to contain $100,000, the first payment of his legacy. Shortly prior to this a fast express has been held up and robbed and Ben Fowler, leader of the gang, is under cover at Hackett's house, posing as a summer boarder. With him is his mistress, Helen, passing as his sister. Fowler has plans which are very novel, to possess himself of Hackett's money, but in carrying them out murders the old gentleman and fails to secure the coveted treasure. Joe Manley, the sweetheart of Hackett's daughter, Susan, immediately starts for Chicago with the money, intending to place it in a bank. Fowler and his crew attempt to ditch the train by giving the wrong block signals, but being frustrated in a very exciting scene, follows Manley to the city where he is waylaid, robbed and falls prisoner in their hands. Fowler has fallen in love with Susan, and meeting her in the Windy City, where she has come in search of Manley, arranges to meet her at the Bismarck Garden. Doby Dick, one of his confederates in crime, closely resembles Manley, and with the assistance of Helen, Fowler is enabled to show Susan her lover, as she is made to believe, in a compromising position. Disgusted with the supposed perfidy of Manley, Susan agrees to marry Fowler. The last act occurs in a magnificent drawing room in Michigan Avenue, which Fowler has rented. While planning with Doby Dick to make way with Helen, whom he has been unable to rid himself of, he is overheard by her, and she attempts his life, but is brutally beaten. Scarcely have the pair gotten Helen out of the way, when Manley appears, having escaped from his jailer, Foster Joe. Then follows one of the most exciting tangle chameleons ever seen on the stage in which every piece of furniture, table and chairs and landlords are smashed to atoms.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

I, the Sheriff of Franklin County, Ky., recommend to the public Smith's Agriculture Lintment as an excellent remedy for Rheumatism, Bruises, Backache, Strains, Old Sores, Poisonous Bites, Soreness through the Lungs, Sore Throat, Diphtheria and the like, having used it in my family for years.

Yours very truly,
22-3m R. C. HEART, Sheriff.

The leading repertoire company of the present season is undoubtedly the Cradock-Neville Organization that comes to the Capital Theatre, all next week. The amount of capital required to equip a company of this magnitude is appalling to the average mind when taking into consideration the low price of admission. This company comes to this city fully equipped to maintain the high reputation of former seasons, carrying as they do their own 70-foot scenery car filled to the roof with an entire second equipment for the nine-day productions staged by this company. The handling of this large amount of scenery requires careful consideration, and to meet every emergency the management have provided their own transfer equipment of horses, wagons, and scenery trucks and a number of expert stage mechanics to properly handle the same, therefore assuring correct scenic productions.

In organizing their present tour the management have been fortunate in securing the handsome coming leading man, Wilson R. Todd. This young gentleman, who is a graduate of Purdue University, class '02, comes to this company direct from Hopkins Stock Company, Chicago, where Mr. Todd won golden opinions from press and public for his clever impersonations of romantic roles, appearing as "Edmond Dantes," "In Monte Christo," "John Storms," "In the Christian," "Sherlock Holmes," "In the Sign of the Four," "John Swiftwind," "In Northern Lights," and many other leading roles. Mr. Todd is an actor from love of his profession, having adopted the stage against the wishes of his father, who is a prominent politician and a millionaire lumber manufacturer of Portland, Maine, where the family is quite prominent in society.

Prices, 10, 20 and 30 cents.

On Sunday evening, about 8 o'clock, the blizzard, that has been foretold, reached here in fine shape. Snow began falling in fine particles that soon had the ground white. It continued to fall until a depth of about 3 inches was reached. It then cleared away and the blizzard got down to business. The thermometer steadily fell until, by Monday morning it had reached 10 degrees above zero. Tuesday morning it showed 4 above, and on Wednesday it had gone to only 1 above.

The ground hog simply said: "Ya! Ya! Ha! Ha!" as he scooted for his hole.

FIRST ANNUAL STATE FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

To Be Held at Frankfort, Ky., January 27th and 28th and March 1, '06. Under the Auspices of the State Department of Agriculture, Labor and Statistics—For the Development of Kentucky's Agricultural and Kindred Interests.

OBJECT.

The object of the State Farmers' Institute is to bring the farmers of the State into closer relation with each other and with the Department of Agriculture for their mutual benefit, to interchange ideas, to encourage legislation for the benefit of the farmers and to lift Kentucky to the forefront of agricultural States. The Institute is to be the central body of farmers in the State, and it is to be made a permanent institution. The local clubs or institutions are to become members of this body, and they will be expected to send delegates to the State meetings to take part in the deliberations, and to present the needs of their respective counties. The State body will work in conjunction with the State Department of Agriculture and will serve to bring the farmers and the Department into close contact with one another to the end that the farmers may be enabled to get direct and substantial benefits from it.

ORGANIZATION.

As soon as the delegates are assembled, it is the purpose to elect a permanent organization and elect officers as follows:
President.
First Vice President.
Second Vice President.
Secretary.
Treasurer.
Each county shall have one vote on the question of organization, but after the organization is effected the Institute may determine for itself the number of voting on all propositions coming before it.

Treating Wrong Disease.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their ever-going and indifferent doctor, a case of general and distinct distress, separate and distinct diseases, which he assumes them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some morbid disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages this practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse, by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause, would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully analyzed, an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to women's ailments. It is made of native medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system.
As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs directly feminine in particular. For overworked, worn-out, run-down, debilitated, feeble, nervous, nervous prostration, neurasthenia, hysteria, spasms, chlorosis, St. Vitus' dance, and all distressing nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels, thus to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

REPRESENTATION.

While each county will have one vote in the matter of organization, it is urged that every county send as many delegates as will agree to come. It is very important to the agricultural interests of the State that this the first State Institute, should be a signal success.

PROGRAMME.

While the programme has not yet been completed, some of the most eminent lecturers in the country have been invited to participate and it can confidently be said that it will be one of the most interesting programmes ever carried out in this State. Among those invited to participate are: Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, of Illinois University; T. G. Holden, of Iowa; Joseph E. Wing, of Ohio; Gifford Pinchot, head of the National Department of Forestry; Prof. J. K. Patterson, of Kentucky State College; Prof. M. A. Sewell, Director of the State Experiment Station; Prof. H. G. Mann, State Entomologist and other men of national reputation, including a prominent road expert.

Governor Beckham will be invited to deliver the address of welcome for the State and Mayor E. E. Hume will deliver the address of welcome for Frankfort. Programmes will be sent out as soon as completed.

REDUCED RATES.

Application has been made for reduced rates on all railroads in the State. Delegates are requested to take certificates from agents in order that they may get the advantage of reduced rates returning.

ENTERTAINMENT.

The Frankfort Business Men's Club will entertain the delegates at a banquet and other entertainment will be provided, including a visit to the New Capitol Site. The Business Men's Club will establish a bureau of information which will look after the comfort of the delegates and guests, and will provide badges for all delegates. The Legislature will still be in session and will be invited to attend the Institute in a body. Every county should feel that the agricultural interests of the State are at stake and should see to it that determined interested men are sent as delegates. Respectfully,
HERBERT VIGELAND,
Commissioner.

FINE ATTRACTION.

Lincoln J. Carter's productions are always interesting to the dramatic impressionist. He does not follow Carter's advice, that the best artist is one that paints with a small brush, but he seized the largest brush from the rack and slings the tint of crimine over all. "The Eleventh Hour" will be rich in detail—just the kind to make the spectator sit on the side of his seat, in exasperance with a succession of thrills, clashing up and down his spinal column. The first act is laid in an old mill, where the villain starts the machinery of the plot in action. The other four acts will deal with Chicago life, which Mr. Carter seems to have made a study of. The principal sensation occurs at a black tower of a railroad and the principal scenic feature will be the representation of a Chicago mill, Bourne's house, like Richard Whitting, in "No. 5 St. John Street." Mr. Carter has evidently endeavored to depict both high and low life in his native city. The company is thoroughly adequate for the presentation of the play, which will be seen at Capital Theatre to-night.

CLIMATE CURES.

The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdone. The poor patient, and the rich patient too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer climate, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives, there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those that use German Syrup. Trial bottles 25c; regular size, 50c. At all druggists.

McCLURE'S WINTER CLEARING SALE

BEGAN FRIDAY, FEB. 2.

Extreme Price Reductions. Extreme Variety of Merchandise.

The reason for this sale is this store's unalterable rule not to carry over goods made for one season to another. This winter's sale will be the greatest we have ever held. We have had the largest year's business in our history. Large business necessarily means large stocks. Consequently there will go in this sale more goods than we have ever before been able to offer on a like occasion. To sell more goods than in former sales means deeper price reductions. So in this sale you will find greater variety of absolutely high grade merchandise than many a store can offer at the season's beginning at prices so low as to almost compel buying. The early comers will of course have greatest choice to select from.

CLOTHING.

$12 Suits, worth up to $30.

Choice of our finest winter weight fancy suits, men's and young men's, for $12. We have never offered such clothing values as are involved in this $12 suit sale. The bulk of them are worth $20 to $25; quite a few retail regularly at $30; none are valued at less than $15. Every suit is hand made and of absolutely all wool material. Included are a number of hand finished worsteds, which are worth to-day 20 per cent. more than we paid for them early in the fall. Three months to wear these suits in yet and then they are good to start next fall with.
